

Nonviolent Conflict Intervention and Peace Teams Advanced Training Workshop

*In honor of Martin Luther King, Jr.
Monday, January 20, 2013
9:30 am - 5:30 pm
Location: Georgetown Univ., ICC 103*

As part of the Martin Luther King Week, Georgetown University's Program on Justice and Peace (JUPS) invites you to RSVP for a full-day advanced training in nonviolent protection and intervention. In this workshop, participants will learn and practice the primary strategies and skills that constitute "the force more powerful" that nonviolence can be.

This workshop will be largely experiential and learning-by-doing. The skills learned can be modified and applied in all facets of life, including university campus life scenarios. Particular attention will be paid to:

- interpersonal conflict scenarios;
- meanings/misconceptions/methods of nonviolence; and
- how peace teams use these methods, domestically and internationally, in the non-partisan prevention and transformation of violence.

Participants will gain an increased awareness of when, where and how they can effectively use nonviolent means for the protection of themselves and of others. Participants will have new skills and insight to share with family members, friends, co-workers, and policymakers.

The training is led by David Grant whose experience includes leadership roles in the International Fellowship of Reconciliation, The Listening Project and Nonviolent Peaceforce. David will be assisted by adjunct Professor Eli McCarthy of the JUPS Program and DC Peace Team.

The training workshop is for students, faculty, and staff members of Georgetown University and is designed for maximum 16 participants. Space is available on an RSVP basis. Participants are asked to commit to the entire 8-hour session. Lunch will be provided at no cost; participants are encouraged to bring their own snacks and beverages. (Note: This workshop will go significantly beyond the Basic Training in NVCI offered in October at Georgetown. The basic training is not a pre-requisite for participation in the advanced training.)

For questions or to reserve your spot, please send an email including your NetId and campus affiliation/major to Prof. Eli McCarthy at esm52@georgetown.edu or (510) 717-8867. For more information about Georgetown's Program on Justice and Peace, visit: <http://justiceandpeace.georgetown.edu/>.